WARE Un! - A U. S. officer from Henderson informs us, that, although some of the counties in that portion of the State have nobly done their duty in furnishing volunteers, others have fallen far short of theirs. The counties of Henderson, Daviess and Crittenden have not supplied one half or even onequarter the number of troops they ought, ere this, to have sent to the defence of the State sed the Union. We are surprised that there has been so much retenney, or at best so much supineness, in a population reputed to contain so powerful an element, not only of loyalty but of chlvalry. How long shall the reprench remain? Will it not be speedily and forever wiped out? We are informed that by far the greatest number of United States recruits furnished by the lower part of our State are from tha counties through which Buckner's troops linve passed. Wherever these marauders go, the inhabitants, as soon as they find opportunity, start for the nearest loyal encampment and enrel thomselves to fight against the invaders. A highly intelligent nud energetic officer, who has been engaged in the business of recruiting, assures us that it would at once be worth five handred men to him if the rebel troops were to pass through Henderson county or Daviess. But why should men wait till their very thresholds are invaded, their families driven out into the night, and their property seized, before they take measures for arresting the progress of the invading ruffians? Why not prevent outraga instead or waiting to avenga its perpe-

The county of Crittenden, we believe, gava a majority of between five and six hundred for the Union. She has done good service at the lot box? Is she sound upon the ball and bayonet question? How many usen hes she contributed to the public service in this great crisis? What are votes if not backed, in peril, was named?

after having forbidden the planters under heavy notice of the Memminger letter:

It is evident our expenditures cannot full short of three hundred in litons of dollars. What expedients has the Secretary of the Treasury proposed by which to raise this amount of money? We are only awars of the loan for fifteen mil-lion dollars, authorized by the Congress at Montgom ry, of which only ten million dollars have been taken; the priduce loun, which has yielded only some thousand bales of cotton, not yet sold, and not likely to be sold soon; the one hundred million dollars treasury notes, authorized by the last easien of Congress, end the direct tax, which may yield fifteen millions. This is the sum total, and on its face it does not cover one half of the inevitable expenditure. The failure to realize the loan for the whole of the our people, but the absence of money. No people are richer in property necessary to the support of life, but not convertible into specie, end none have more valuable products, when the markets of the world are open, but valueless under existing circumstances. As to the product lest existing circumstances. As to the produce loau, we suppose every man in the Southern Confederacy, except the Secretary of the Treasury and Mr. De Bow, is conscious of its after failure. The direct tax, when collected, may produce fifteen millions. But that, in connection with the Stale taxes, will require more than the amount of money in the bands of the people. The banks will be the only resource, and they, to meet the wants of the community, will be forced to expand to a point prohibited by their charters, and endaggering the worth of their charters, and endangering the worth of their

In a hrief article in our paper of yesterday, wo assumed, on the strength of what we had erreneously supposed to be a statement of Mr. Memminger, that the lifteen million loan, which the Confederata Government and the Southern Legislatures and the rebel organs and the stump speakers have for six months been ondeavoring by promises and entreaties and threats to induce capitalists and the people to take, had at last been taken, hut such is not the fact. Mr. M. does not say that the loan has becu taken, and the Richmond Whig informs its readers that only ten millions or two thirds of it has been taken, and the necessary inference is that no more will or can be. This pitiful sum is the whole that the Southcrn Confederacy has been or is able to obtain from its own people upon its national credit, and we all know that it cannot raise a dollar outside of its own boundaries, having miscrably Produce Loan, the last ingenious and desperate hops of the South, the Whig announces as to he such, and now the Llitor says, that, and how they obtained their knowledge. If while the Government expenditures cannot fall as they allege, they have especial sources of year, the direct tax, which may produce offeen that they are holding, directly or indirectly, millions, and the State taxes, will together re- treasonable intercourse with the enemy? quire more than the entire amount of money in the hands of the people. What recourse, then, can the people of the South have? Whither can they fly for relief from the burthen, which, already ernshing their lives out, is increasing in weight every day? Look at the character of the Southern currency at this time. Gold and silver have disappeared from circulation. Nobody pays them out for anything, no dealer or man of business or gentleman at large dares to ask them. Tho Government has taken possession of all the specio in the banks, and, although permitting a certain portion to remain there, it prohibits the banks from paying any of it out under a severe penalty-the penalty of the ferfeiture of if he has goods for sale and offers to take less little while. Bulwer, in a late popular speech, evinced nost unmistakably his hostility to the United States, and regarded a restoration of the Union as undesirable. Why undesirable: Surely not on account of humanity and the nest interests of national freedom throughout the world, but simply because the progress prosperity, and commerce of the United States nave been constant sources of jenlous irritation to Great Britain. The cotton of the South and the cereals of the North have been the great leasis of all this power. Cotton is now ocked up by the blockade of the Confederate ports, while the cereals are embling the loyal States to pay the expenses of the civil war. This is a point which, if known throughout the Sonthern States, would produce symptoms of a commercial revolution even more definite than those created by Secretary Memminger's recent circular. The people of the cotten region, disenthralled from the rule of sellish desgood at the cartridge box as she is at the baltrue interests, and would firmly resolva upon a restoration of the peaceful reof the great national unit. Thus reunited, our Government would he stronger than ever tenden think for what glorious old patriot sho

Whether General Thomas's report was "wholly unfitted for publication," is a point on which wa, at least, do not choose to effer an epinion. It came to us, as that of Gon. Stone did, published in the same paper, in regular course from the War Department, with anthority to give it to the public through our columns. It is not for us to decide upon the times of efficial reports for publication. Oa thet point the Departments are quite able to judge for themselves, and we should not feel at liverly to reject either Gen. Thomas's or Gen. Stone's for eject either Gen. Thomas's or Gen. Stone's fo any such raason. Wo require more direct and authentic as surances than thesa to convince us that the publication of Gen. Thomas's so-called report was authorized by the Wnr Department. If the War Department did authorize the publication of the paper, the War Department is disgracefully and ruinously unequal to the proper or even the decent performance of its unctions. On this point there is little room for difference of opinion amongst persons of mnion discretion. They who think it more probable that the War Department is thus scandalously incompetent or unfaithful than that the Tribune misapprehends or perverts the fact, will o course accept the 'Tribuna's assurances mor or less implicitly; we, however, are not of that number. Yet the Trihunc's assertion is at least of sufficient importance to warrant an authoritative contradiction. We hope such a contradiction will be promptly made. The War Department owes this to itself as well as

o the country. Some of the secessionists here, we nnerstand, attempt to alarm our people by telllng how strong Buckner's forces are and how soon he will capture Louisville, professing as the same time to possess peculiar means of infailed both in Lurope and New York. Judge Williams, who has doffed the ju licial toga for the soldier's uniform, and is now Colonel Williams, is recruiting his regiment with great success in the First District, and will soon succeed in raising the full complement. At Smithland and other points on the Ohio river, our men are coming in daily as fast as they can escape from the interior and slip through the Confederate pickets. They are all animated by the purest patriotism and moved to action by the persecutions and indignities they have suffered at the hands of the rebels. The regiment of Col. Williams, when once in the field, will enable many of its members to revisit their families, from whom they are now exilad, and also epon the way for others to join the Union ranks, who are now placed under such strict surveillance that they find it impossible to leave their

To this end it was prop sed that the Confederate Governmen sould found a National Bank, and issue the ost-note., payable two years after date, veluin he strictly middling cotton at ten cents per pound nigher, and lower grades in purportion, accorig to classification. The schemo contemplated the suing of $200,000,000, on this basis, and the $100,000,000 more on the contingency of th large profits. The advocates for this measur believed government would realize on the sale of be largely over $100,000,000, after defraying all Capenses altending it. This latter feature over the capens altending it. the cotton, which they confidently predicted would expenses altending it. This latter feature excited the ever grasping cupidity of the cotton-planters who thought they might errange a plan which would serve the Government as well and them relyes better. This latter plan was fully adopted, and the best rators of the whole South campaigned Alabams, Missiscippi, Arkansas, Georgia, Tennessee and all the cotton region for additions to the "cotton loan, ' preclaiming to the world, through the Southern newspapers, the levelty and liberality of the Southern planters, and the great success of the lean which they or indently represented would y January I, 1862 reach $200,000,000. The time has now arrived when the cott n planter sees thure is no chance to realize mything for his cotton, and he is now netifying the Government that he is ready to deliver his pertion of the lean, when to his amedement he is coolly met by a preclamatice from the new Secretary of the Confederate Treasury that Government ignores the whole arraugement, and the planter all at once finds himself surrounded by his cotton beles, which will not aid him in appeasing the demicds of us gent and suffering creditors, and poor humbled King Cotton finds himself prostrato and unable to feed, clothe, or in noy way provide for the necessities or comfort of his most opulent on prominent subjects. The arguments by which the cetton loan are the expense and difficulty in storing, protecting, and taking care of the cotter, the danger of inviting invasion and confiscation &c., and is low be calls on the patriotism of the Southern Barks to extend the circulation of their irreductivable issue to the relief of the placters. The while truth is, secessionism his devastated and destroyed all commercial value in the South. The Union Bank c l'annessee stock was selling in Philadelphia when South Carelina went out at 11'; to-day it is frosly offered in this city for 50 cents, and car likely be bought for 15 or less. In March last the Southern States had about one hundred and twenty-seven millions in gold and silver; ir spite of all the concern and watchfuloess of the Confederata Government it has ruu down to niusty or to one hundred millions at most and netwithstanding the vigilines of the Government it would have been much more reduced had it not been for the fact that an unusual amount of sterling exchange was held by the banks, which state of things grow out of the fact that the banks stopped specie pay. ment early in the season, and, consequently they did not remit their axchange to New York to be cashed, as usual, for the purpose of redseming their circulation; and what also tended to keeping the exchange in the country is the facthat eterling exchange was down in April nne May lower then it has been but once in 25 years reaching the depressed point of 93@9312, when the real par (valuing the covereign at 485, the standard by law) is 108). The writer has often heard intelligent mon express a conviction that from the plantifulness of sterling exchange the Confederates must be in possession of monetary aid from England, Such, I am contident, is not the care, from the fact that the great staples of cotton LOUISVILLE. EY. and tobeeco at present in the South are without price or sale. If Lugland were aiding them it would be by indvances on these commodities which would consequently have a prics. The facts in the case are that sterling exchange appears to be more pleaty than it really is, as the hanks cannot get the coin icto the country in Goods. Also on plain and figured colored Silks, blace exchange for it, and from the further fact that plain and figured Silks, loans Rep Silks, and Silks very large balances are now boing drawn for, as shipping cotton to Liverpool from the South has Br che Sharle from $3 50 up. Also 102 beles and care ealized immense profits, in many cases over 100 per cent; and as they only drew for what the value of the cetten was when shipped, hence they have the bilance to drew ngeinst now. The writer was told by a banker of this city of a sharp practice of the Nashville banks in redeeming their chesks on New York which were dis onored. The bank held their checks for their own notes or Confederate money at 10 per cent
